LIQUOR LICENSE RAISED

The Board of Supervisors adopted a new liquor ordinance at their meeting on Saturday, by the terms of which the revenues of the county will be increased $9,480 per annum. This sum, it is estimated, will be amply sufficient to pay all the bonds and interest on the construction of the new court house being built for Sonoma county. This will be good news to the tax payers.

The new ordinance will affect only the saloons under the jurisdiction of the Board of Supervisors, which is the saloons cutside of incorporated towns in the county. Heretofore the license has been one hundred dollars per annum, and the new ordinance makes it one hundred and sixty dollars. There are one hundred and fifty eight saloons in the county outside of incorporated towns.

The new ordinance was drafted by District Attorney Lea, at the direction of the supervisors, and these officials conferred as to its provisions. Mr. Lea made many suggestions from his past experience in dealing with cases brought officially to his attention. More stringent measures are adopted in the new ordinance for the regulation of the saloon business.

Some of the provisions of the new ordinance are as follows: No person not now engaged in the liquor business in Sonoma county can be granted a license in the future unless he is a citizen by birth or naturalization of the United States.

Another provision is one prohibiting itinerants selling liquors in the county, thus effectually shutting off all peddling of liquors of all kinds.

Hereafter no license can be transferred by the holder to another person without the approval of the supervisors. In the past transfers have been possible at the will of the holders

All licenses being granted to a person for the first time must be on the written order of the Board of Supervisors. Thereafter the tax collector makes renewals for the remaining three quarters of a year without an order from the Board. Once a year the Board must approve all licenses, for which applications must be filed annually.

No new license can be granted to a person unless that person pay in advance the total amount on one year's license, $160. This will prevent persons applying for a license and conducting a saloon for a portion of a year only. This has been done in the past.

More stringent provisions are in the new ordinance against selling liquors without a license than formerly. Any person selling liquor in any quantity, even a glass, without a license, can be convicted under the new law.

Any person holding a license who is convicted three times in three years or violating a state law or ordinance of the county relating to the liquor business, shall forfeit his license on the third conviction. In estimating these convictions the conviction of the agent or servants of the holder of the license will be counted against him.

The hours during which saloons must remain closed remain the same, from midnight until 5 o'clock each morning. The old ordinance prescribed no penalty for an infraction of the hours, but the new one makes it a misdomeanor punishable by a fine of not less than $10 nor more than $300, or imprisonment for not less than ten days, nor more than three months.

The new law absolutely prohibits minors, persons under eighteen years of age, and persons addicted to the habitual use of intoxicants to be given liquors in any saloon.

A difference is made in the character of the complaint against a saloon run in a disorderly manner. Under the old law five citizens had to sign a complaint and it had to be sworn to by three citizens. Under the new law it may be sworn to by any peace officer, or signed by five citizens and sworn to by one taxpayer.

The new ordinance also provides that the party complained against be personally served with a notice, and be given three days before the hearing of the charges.

The new law goes into effect at midnight of December 31. Its enactment also adds more than $900 to the office of Frank M. Collins. This is done by the state law, and not by the supervisors. The state law gives the tax collector ten per cent. of the amounts collected in licenses, and the increase in amount increases his income.—Republican.

To an Ideal Friend.

Within my rosary tonight I strung a bead,
Dear as friendship jewels that in my life are real;
Wishing him a token of my highest esteem,
Friendship rosary of beads holds one ideal,
Voicing all the feelings of my utmost soul
Simple still this, tho' truthful all its words must be.
He is far on the path I would tread
But his soul light radience will beacon me;
He is great, not great as he upon a throne,
His rule is simple, but 'tis more divine,
Over a kingdom of true friends he rules.
Receiving true loyalty and has mine;
Children, sunny-haired, before him bend the knee,
Gazing with their pure and childish grace,
Asking for his wisdom and his love words too;
Receiving both with radiance from his smiling face.
Tender ones are those that seem to love him best,
Great is he who draws to him the little child;
They can teach him humbleness and faith and love.
Children fair, on whom the loving Savior smiled.
He has learned to live by his own law alone,
Minds of others alter not his purpose strong,
Words of ridicule, touch not his dauntless soul
He would know himself to help the world along;
He is great forever in the walk of life
Seeks he out the humble ones that daily strive
By their faithful labor for their food and home:
Feeling it a joy to live and be and alive.
Nature is his guardian and in her care
He can find a heaven spot to build a home,
Bounded by far reaching hills and woods and streams,
Lit by sun and stars from the eternal dome,
Nature has a call that he must ever heed.
Something far within him that is called the soul
Follows her where'er she leads, thro' joy and strife
She the one who gave him life will find his goal
Counting o'er my rosary of friends tonight
I but plead that from this one I may never part,
But ask his inspiration as I walk thro' life
To keep me strong in soul and good as he in heart.

I. J. Button Indicted

On Saturday it was an open secret that the indictment which was returned by the grand jury of this county before it adjourned on Friday afternoon of last week, was against former Supervisor Isaac J. Button of Occidental, formerly a well known Petalumen and where he is prominently connected. The news has caused a profound sensation throughout the county.

The indictment was based on the alleged duplication of certain bills for lumber, which were furnished the county during the time Mr. Button was in office. The matter is said to have been under investigation a former sessions of the grand jury and on previous occasions lacked but a few votes of finding an indictment.

Improve Your Town

If you want your town to improve, improve it. If you want your town lively, make it. Don't go to sleep, but get up and work for it, talk about it and talk favorably. If you have property, improve it, paint your houses, clean up your alleys and back yards, make your surroundings pleasant, and you will be worth more in the market. If you are doing reasonably well advise your friends to come and invest near you. Work steadily for your home dealers. Keep your money at home as much as possible, and it is likely to help you in return. The successful towns have been made by the property owners pulling together. Public improvement is an investment that pays. Don't waste your time over dirty quarrels and hold back your aid from good objects through spite, but work for some good and you will find yourself benefited.

A town is like a large family. We are all interested in each other's welfare or should be. A cut throat every man-for-himself policy means ruin for any community. It means retrogression and failure. The first lesson that any family must learn is that to be happy and successful is unity and mutual assistance. The same applies to the business life of a town and more generally it is obeyed the more abundent will be the town prosperity. Stand by each other and patronize the home folks.

A Band of Swindlers

From the Department of State, Washington, D. C., comes a letter warning the public at large against a band of swindlers.

The first letter comes, apparently, from a prisioner in Cuba, who claims he is rich, is at the point of death and has but one friend,—the prison priest—through whose good offices he is enabled to smuggle an occasional letter out of the prison. He claims to have a fortune in cash on deposit in the United States, but the certificate of deposit is concealed in a secret receptacle of his valise, which is held by the court of Carthagena.

He claims to have an only daughter, and in writing to a supposed relative—anyone whom his confederates in this country have found with plenty of ready cash—he asks them to furnish the amount necessary to obtain the valise, take charge of his daughter with her $30,000, and be rewarded by receiving one fourth of the amount.

Sympathies are aroused, the money paid and finally the doner hears no more and has only the vision of a tidy little sum taking wing, never to return.

Many Americans have been swindled by this scheme.

A New Grand Jury

Judge Emmet Seawell presided at the drawing of the venire for the new Sonoma county grand jury in Department One of the Superior court on Monday afternoon. The order for the venire was made at the forenoon session of the court.

Deputy County G. A. Feldmeyer drew the names from the box, and passed them to the court with the aid of Deputy Sheriff Donald McIntosh. The following thirty names were drawn, and from them the nineteen members necessary to constitute the jury will be selected:

William M. Cunningham, Windsor; Frederick Pohley, Windsor; Carl L. C. Peterson, Geyserville; Scott Bowes, Petaluma; Antone J. Perelli Minetti, Cloverdale; Christian Stengel, Santa Rosa; Garland H. Dugan, Santa Rosa; John H. Gunn, Healdsburg; William A. Mills, Pennsgrove; Franklin A. Petray, Healdsburg; Nathan H. Mansfield, Santa Rosa; Gustav H. Hotz, Sonoma; George E. Remmel, Geyserville; Frederick J. Yandle, Santa Rosa; John W. Bauer, Petaluma; Louis V. H. Howell, Sebastopol; William Evert, Penngrove; Elmont Brooks, Santa Rosa; Andrew J. Gallaway, Healdsburg; Byron M. Spencer, Santa Rosa; John D. Williams, Bodega; B. F. Campbell, Sonoma; James H. Cowan, Kenwood; James Carmody, Bloomfield; John Joseph King, Petaluma; J. K. Bigelow Sonoma.

The thirty men named will be summoned to attend the court at Santa Rosa next Monday, at which time the grand jury will be impaneled. The old grand jury adjourned sine die last Friday afternoon.

Bismarck Hotel Attached

Tuesday the Bismarck Hotel bar was attached by local business men while the proprietor, Tony Happe, was away settling family difficulties, and upon his return Wednesday he found his best friends had turned against him—his own lawyer heading the list.

A number of our merchants were hoodwinked into believing Tony had skipped the country, never to return and allowed their bills to be entered in the attachment.

Tony, upon his return, soon began straightening things out, and accompanied by S. Schocken, went to Santa Rosa Thursday and settled.

Mrs. Happe returned Tuesday with her husband and has again taken her position as landlady, much to the pleasure of their many boarders.

DEATH, in its robe of black, has been knocking at the portals of Sonoma for many years, but has been held back by our healthful climate up to the present time. With our rapidly growing population we can no longer stay its hand, and unless we abolish the cesspool and the old disease infected ditch we cannot avoid its entrance to our city. A sewer system is the only solution.

William August Seipp

Tuesday, in Glen Ellen, occurred the death of William August Seipp, age 52 years, 6 months and 23 days. His sickness was only of a day's duration and his death adds one more victim to pneumonia.

Mr. Seipp was born and raised in Sonoma and almost his entire life was spent here where he had many friends and acquaintances, who extend their sympathies to the surviving relatives.

He is survived by Henry Seipp, who was mayor of Sonoma several years ago and who now resides in San Jose, and Gus Seipp, who has a fine farm just below town, and Mrs. Maria Chase also of this city. The funeral took place from Bates' undertaking parlors at 2 p. m. today. Interment in Mountain cemetery.

Board Meets at Eldridge

Many matters of importance were considered by the board of managers of the Sonoma State Home at Eldridge at its sessions at the institution Tuesday evening and Wednesday. Much of the time of the board was taken up in matters pertaining to the two new buildings that are being constructed under the regime of the board. Appropriations for the new buildings were made by the last legislature. It is hoped that the new buildings will soon be finished as the work is being pushed to completion as rapidly as possible. The president of the board, Major C. E. Haven, Secretary H. W. A. Weske, and Director J. P. Berry were in attendance at the meetings, having gone to Eldridge Tuesday afternoon.

High School Report

We have lost a schoolmate, Miss Marie Clewe, who will attend high school at Berkeley this winter.

We wish to acknowledge a beautiful plant, which we received from the Speckel's ranch, through Mr. Bates. Please accept our thanks.

Thursday we received a large box of statuary from Boston. There is a large figure of Minerva, two busts of William Shakespeare, a bust of Venus, a Flying Mercury, a figure of Venus and a large placque. Truly the pocket of "The Ulster" was well lined.

Basket ball! We won! Rah! Rah! Last Saturday our girls won their first glorious victory at Basket Ball with Mill Valley, at a score of 36 to 13. Our team did splendid work and deserved to win. The line-up was: Goaler—Edna Cooper, Irene Albrecht; Guards—Florence Rubke, Gertrude Calderwood; Centers—Marjorie Buchan, Henrietta Weber.

We received a challenge from Mill Valley, for a return game, but are thinking of tackling Napa next.

The Truth Will Out

It was with a feeling of deep regret and infinite sorrow that we of the "Naughty Bunch" unfolded the EXPOSITOR last Friday and eagerly but vainly scanned the columns of that paper for an account of our noturnal sport of October 30. Such an oversight on the part of the above mentioned sheet can only be characterized as inexcusable and bordering on wanton cruelty.

Far be it from us to say that the reporters were bribed or actuated by any spirit of revenge. Suffice it to say that our moonlight festivities were omitted and that the omission has caused us to shed salty tears of grief.

You see, gentle reader, the High School girls, our schoolmates, had a party as the high school Hallowe'en eve. From this party boys were "banned and barred, forbidden fare." Gee, we were sore and hungry. So we met and held an indignation meeting. The girls' beaux were there, so were Clarence and Percy. Percy was the originator of the frolic despite reports to the contrary.

Some of the bunch wanted to kick in unceremoniously. Others wanted to climb in surreptitiously and get a bite to eat at the "Jinks" larder. A third plan was to make a detour, a couple of reconnoitres, a flank movement and charge the beseiged on the east. But we decided it was best, also most expedient, that we have a "hand out" and take our leave. So we deputized Percy to procure sandwiches for us, which he accordingly did. Percy always was a dear child.

Clarence, made brave by Percy's success, strode with manly tread toward the larder. Arriving there he hastily snatched up a basket of supposed viands and came forth like the proverbal conquering hero. We all stood 'round while Clarence opened the basket. What was in it? A girl's costume. Right then and there we expelled Clarence from the bunch.

In concluding this story we wish to say a few words in condemnation of the decorations as seen from without. The spiders, pumpkins, witches etc., were indicative of much good taste and reflect great credit on the imaginative minds of the girls. But the taste of the sandwiches, after all, will ever bring pleasant memories to the "Naughty Bunch."

Respectfully,
NAUGHTY BUNCH.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. L. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. The Tatler

Popular topics of the day gleaned by an Idler

I hope, my reader, you'll not take offense
If the Tatler gives you a poke.
I'm only a good fellow and—
Believe me, it's only a joke.—Tatler.

Did you see me this week?

Well, I saw you, and if I don't happen to mention your name this time don't be jealous, I'll get around to you all right.

Monday I took a stroll up Napa street, and as I passed the City Hotel the strains of "We'll never miss the water 'till the well runs dry" floated to me from between the doors and I paused in astonishment. Could I believe my ears! It was the first time I had ever heard water mentioned in Jim's place. Investigation proved the noise to be Jim's electric banjo. He informed me he did not have to buy the banjo unless he wished. Gee, Jim! It's a great relief to know you don't own it.

Nothing doing there, so I dropped in on Joe Ryan and was received with that famous smile "that won't come off." While chatting with our genial constable I noticed Joe's right bower was minus his usual large quantity of hair. I never knew the hair pulling game began so early in life.

Bidding goodbye to Joe my next stop was at Lewis & Cummings, where I expected to see long rows of frankforters and large platters of saurkraut on display. Their absence made them conspicious. Mike informed me he had just sold out and inclined his head toward the post-office. Immediately I scented a mystery and departed with the firm intention of clearing it up.

Upon arriving at Werner's News Depot this famous ditty came to mind:

Werner and weine sound the same;
To eat the weines was Werner's game.
Ten pounds or more—so they say—
He stowed away in one short day.

Werner's expression and size sion of fullness and the size of an solved the mystery—an expres elephant.

I made my escape and started for the Union Hotel, but when I got to Clewe's my nerve failed me, for of all the unearthly sounds I ever heard—and I have attended a Chinese theatre, listened to the braying of a hundred mules, heard the screach of a wild hyena—but this noise beat them all. Gaining courage I entered and to my amazement found three of our band boys practicing a popular air with a 7-foot pen driver keeping time. Enough for me—I beat it, and, unable to resist the temptation, I visited our Mayor.

As luck would have it I got a flying start, turned two double hand springs and landed in the back room. Well, my entrance was too sudden, my momentum was not decreased and with the assistance of a number nine I landed in the back yard. Yes, my interview was a success—for speed.

Next I made a line for Simmon's drug store in search of court plaster. I was waited upon by a broomstick mounted on legs. Where'd you get it, Simmons? I thought Simmons had birds for sale in his store, but take my word, it's Hotz that has birds in his store. Seeking more excitement I purchased some cheroots and departed.

My desires were gratified by seeing the front of Bates' store bound skyward and settle back with a thud. Henry had just entered his store from the rear. I didn't stop because I'm no quitter even tho' I was out to see, and I don't believe I'd like the idea of see-sawing with Henry with a brick building as the board.

My next stop was at the post-office where I got thirteen 2-cent stamps for a cent and a quarter. No it wasn't bargain day with Uncle Sam, for Mr. Cheney will sell you 13 any day for that amount.

That's about all for this time, except that I overlooked our friend the barber. I understand Moose is going to play an alto in the band. Judging from his profession at present he is sure to be a successful "wind jammer."

Next week I will take a stroll up the east side of the plaza and see if I can't dig up a few sunbeams for my readers. So keep your eyes open boys for "the Tatler will catch you if you don't watch out."

DOUBLE MURDER

Ignatz Novskow Kills Two Helpless Women and Then Shoots Self.

Monday evening a demon raised his hand in the ferry building in San Francisco and sent two of our respected residents to the world beyond by shooting both in the heart, and then turning the revolver on himself, sent a ball crashing through his own brain before a large crowd, who were awaiting the departure of the 4:45 boat for this city.

Mrs. T. Sholtz and Miss Betty Sholtz were the victims and were well known in this city where they have lived for the past three years at their home on lower Broadway just beyond the city limits

Ignatz Novikow, son-in-law and brother in-law of the victims did the dastardly and cowardly deed, for no apparent reason other than he was unable to make money and desired his wife's relatives to support himself and family.

Prior to the deed he wrote the following note:

"Dear Nikoff:—Goodby. I will shoot the mother and sister because they have come to my house and asked my wife why she lived with a Russian and why she did not pick a wealthy Jew, or a German, or some one who has lots of money. I will shoot my mother in-law and sister just as I would a dog. We have been married a long time. I asked my wife why she did not take a German the first time she married. She has two babies now. If she did not have those I would shoot her, too. I tell my mother in law that she must go to her grave. NOVIKOW."

Within a few minutes after penning this note Novikow rushed to the ferry building and performed his awful deed. Shortly after the shooting the ambulance arrived and the bodies were removed to the morgue.

Mrs. Sholtz was an elderly lady highly respected in this community. Miss Betty was a talented musician, and many times furnished most excellent music at local entertainments in our churches. She was also beautiful. The murder leaves a wife and two babes, who must now rely on her brother and father for the support and protection he should have given them.

The Musician's Union of San Francisco, of which Miss Betty was a member, took charge of the bodies of the two ladies and yesterday afternoon 150 musicians attended the funeral services and accompanied the remains to the grave.

At this writing the remains of the murderer are still at the morgue.

That another death has not resulted from the murder of Mrs. Sophia Scholtz and her daughter, Betty, is due to the timely interference of neighbors. Out at the home of the murderer and suicide, on Missouri street, the aftermath of the tragedy is shown in all its pathos, says the Chronicle.

Mrs. Novikow, daughter and sister of the dead woman, begs for the privilege of ending her own life. The distraught woman is watched night and day by her friends, who realize that her mind is in such a condition that if she were left alone for a moment she would try to take her life.

Her aged father, August Sholtz went to San Francisco Tuesday. The sudden and violent loss of his wife and daughter seems to have rendered him almost speechless. He sits with his daughter's hand in his, staring into space. The youngest daughter, Martha, has also been hysterical since the tragedy, and requires the constant care of a trained nurse. So serious is the condition of both sisters that friends did not allow them to see each other until the father reached the city.

Is Your Family Reading "Worth While?"

So much current reading is merely entertaining at best that the question naturally arises, Is it worth while? Your sons and daughters are bound to read something. They hunger for stories which take them into the other half of the world—the world of adventure, of valor, of fortune making. The problem is to give them such reading without putting into their hands the literature that is either silly or demoralizing. The editors of the Youth's Companion, believe that a periodical can be made entertaining and yet "worth while" and The Companion is conducted on that theory. And that is one reason why more than half a million American families read it. The paper is safe, but not dull. Its tales of adventure illustrate the advantages of fortitude and self reliance. Its stories of character lay stress on the truth that right conduct is never a mistake.

Every new subscriber will find it of special advantage to send at once the $1.75 for the new 1910 volume. Not only does he get the beautiful "Venetian" Calendar for 1910, lithographed in thirteen colors and gold, but all the issues of The Companion for the remaining weeks of 1909 from the time subscription is received.

BUSYBODIES VS. TRUTH.

Here Are The Facts—Judge For Yourself.

Busybodies who see in success only falsity, who, without making an effort to inform themselves, blatantly cry offense against honesty and truth—seem to forget that a slur against Dr. Pierce's well-known non-alcoholic family remedies is a slur against the intelligence of thousands of clear-thinking American women who know they have been helped and cured by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is not a "patent medicine" in any sense—it is simply the favorite remedy which Dr. Pierce used in an extended practice for the treatment of the diseases peculiar to women.

Truth and Influence. A name for honesty and square dealing is better than great riches. Fraud is a bubble that soon bursts. Dr. R. V. Pierce has always been known to speak the truth—his famous medicines are founded on the rock of public approval and have thousands of truthful testimonials as to their ability to cure diseases for which they are recommended.

True Speaking. No man ever lost a prospective customer through telling the truth. In the long run Dr. Pierce believes the truth will prevail and he is therefore not afraid to make public his formula.

Valuable Trade Secrets. The ingredients of Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription are given to the public. He vindicates the excellence and harmless character of his "Prescription" by letting ailing women know just what they are taking when they use this reliable tonic and nervine for the diseases and illnesses peculiarly feminine. These ingredients are combined in just the right proportion to make an efficient remedy, without the use of a particle of alcohol, and they are as follows: Golden Seal root, Black Cohosh root, Unicorn root, Blue Cohosh root, Lady's Slipper root, with chemically pure glycerine of proper strength for extracting and preserving the active medicinal principles residing in the above native roots.

No Alcohol Used. Dr. Pierce never believed it necessary or advisable to use alcohol in the preparation of either his "Favorite Prescription" for weak women, or his "Golden Medical Discovery," the well-known alterative tonic, which is so largely used as a remedy for indigestion, torpid liver, bad blood and kindred ailments. Over forty years ago, he discovered that chemically pure glycerine is a far better solvent of most of the active principles residing in our native medicinal plants when used at a proper and sustained temperature than is alcohol; and, furthermore, he found that a glyceric extract kept much better than an alcoholic one, and that the glycerine possessed intrinsic remedial value, being demulcent, nutritive and an effective anti-ferment. Although costing somewhat more, Dr. Pierce predicts that glyceric medicinal extracts will, in the not distant future, largely replace alcoholic ones so generally prescribed by physicians and put out by proprietary or "patent medicine" manufacturers, as being more efficient and entirely free from the serious objection of making inebriates when used in lingering or chronic cases, where a somewhat protracted use of medicine is necessary no matter how good or well adapted to the case it may be in order to obtain permanent results.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. When the "Favorite Prescription" is not quite laxative enough, as in obstinate constipation, the little, pleasant, sugar-coated "Pellets" should be taken to aid the "Prescription." One or two for a laxative, two to four for a cathartic. They alone have been known to cure many bad cases of stomach trouble, dyspepsia and indigestion. They act on the liver and regulate the bowels. Put up in glass vials, corked, therefore, always fresh and reliable.

Marietta Finally Understood the Lawton Case

By JOANNA SINGLE.

Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

Frank Worthing frowned as he looked up from the code at his partner, William Butler, who, with his straw hat pushed back on his rumpled fair hair, was still insisting that he leave the office for the rest of the day.

"Confound you, Billy, heat or no heat, August or December, a fellow that's going to get on in the law simply must do some studying. Can't you get it through your thick head when I say I am not going that I mean it? Take the girls by yourself if they are silly enough to like your company. Can't see what anything bigger than a child sees in a vaudeville park anyhow. Now, Billy, get out of here, do! Your everlasting grin gives me a temperature, and the heat is bad enough this afternoon as it is."

Butler surveyed his friend with elaborate pity. "Poor boy!" he commented ruminatingly. "He hasn't been himself since he won the big case last month. Turns down his friends, flocks by himself. Must have overworked or else he's in love. Must be love. Perhaps the fair Alice will capitulate after all. She ought to after you saved her fortune from a greedy stepmother. Go after it, son. Well, by-by. Me to Grace and Marietta and the despised park."

Alice Lawton, indeed, thought Worthing. Well, that idea was better in Butler's shallow pate than the real truth—namely, that Marietta's sudden fondness for his partner was eating his heart out. It was always Marietta and Billy Butler everywhere, and he used to think it was Grace for whom Billy longed. Worthing had known no inner peace since Marietta had come last winter to live with her cousin, Grace Hunter. From the first meeting the girl's dark, little, serious face, sweet eyes, gay laughter, had not left his consciousness. And she had certainly seemed to like him, even to prefer him, to let him monopolize her somewhat and even to be demurely glad when they were left alone together.

Gloomily reflecting, he began to wonder what had changed her. June had been a joy time. If he had spoken then all might have been well, but that Lawton inheritance case came to him. He recognized the professional opportunity, worked on it like a slave day and night all through July and won, feeling that he had now a little better basis for offering his heart to the girl he loved. He was also delighted because he had done a service to Alice, his lifelong friend. But what had changed Marietta?

Finding himself unable to study, Worthing phoned for his car and closed the office. He would go for Alice and take her for a spin and have dinner at the golf club and then ride again till the moon came up. Perhaps they might go through the park themselves, and—no, he would let Marietta alone! He recognized that he longed to see her.

But Alice was not at home, and, bitterly lonely, he motored out into the country. As the sun set and the cool of evening came on his troubled heart grew more calm. He would reason with himself, try to see what he had done or left undone, why Marietta when he went back to her, flushed and joyous with his victory, had received him with the frozen sweetness of a dish of ice cream and thereafter managed never to be with him alone for a single moment. The first time he had noticed it was once when, with Alice, whom he was taking to his office, he met her on the street just in front of the building. Her greeting had been very cool.

Worthing drew up beneath a great tree and, taking a little photo of the girl from his pocket, looked at it with loving inquiry. He recalled that another time that she had been cool to him was when he was telling her how much it meant to Alice to get her legal rights and how glad he was to have been able to help her. That was at the golf club dance, and after that she had been unable to find a dance for him. He sat thinking.

Suddenly it came to him—the ridiculous little key to the solution. He started the machine, headed again for the city, driving like one in a sort of happy insanity. He would go straight to the park, find her and see her long enough to ask her if he was right if he had to toss Billy into the lake to be rid of him. Of course a fellow couldn't ask a girl directly what he intended to know, but he was lawyer enough to extract from her indirectly all he desired. He could not wait to see her—it was all so foolishly simple.

It was nearly dusk when, with hope and fear mingling in his heart, he reached the park and, impatiently obedient to the rules and the watchful police, crawled slowly along the drives looking for a group in which he might distinguish Marietta's slim little figure and crown of dark hair. Where in the world could they be? He stopped on a wrong clew several times and at last went slowly to a remote corner where there was a great old fashioned swing. It would be like that idiot Butler to take her off to chatter to her unhindered and perhaps to swing her, for she loved to risk her little life, and Worthing had always had a deadly fear that the chains or something might break. He had seen one such accident. Now he began to be sure Butler was not fit to look after her.

His surmise had been right. He saw Grace, tall and big and blond, standing watching that consummate idiot, Billy, as he pushed Marietta—his Marietta—high and yet higher into the air. He jumped from his car, motioning Butler, who did not see him, to stop, not daring to call lest he frighten her. He was sure the swing was not safe. He came running up, facing the girl, who, as she receded to be pushed forward again by Butler, saw him and gave a little cry. Out she came toward him, far out. His heart stopped as a sudden warning creak from the chains made him look up. The chain had broken.

Without an instant's hesitation he held up his arms for her and shouted, "Jump, Marietta, jump!" Such command, such conviction, rang in his voice that the girl obeyed as if her own mind had prompted her. While a horribly frightened silence fell on the others and some people close by came running up she fell safely into his arms, where he stood holding her, telling her and the rest, telling himself, that she was not hurt. And, indeed, she had miraculously escaped without harm, for Butler had caught the chain so the swing could not strike her as she fell.

It seemed ages to Frank Worthing before he made everybody go away before it dawned on Butler, who was strangely willing, that he was to take Grace home and leave him (Worthing) to bring Marietta when and how he chose. She was very silent and queer, and he had felt her cling to him as he held her in his arms as if she would never leave that shelter.

They did not go straight home, be it said, but out to the country. And they saw the moon rise, and many things were said, especially by Worthing, whose usual slowness of speech melted away under his great need. So presently they were very much engaged, and he stopped the car, the better to hold her hand, a proceeding of much greater importance than reaching home, where he would have to let her out of his sight till the next day. Then she demanded what had brought him to the park. It gave him the desired opening.

"You," he answered, with succinct promptitude. "I was going to toss Billy into the lake while I asked you what I had done or left undone that I should be driven out of paradise. It dawned on me that I might have—neglected you during that Lawton case, because, you see, Alice"— He felt his beloved stiffen.

"I'm sure nobody ever thought of hindering your devotion to Miss Lawton, I"— But he shamelessly interrupted.

"But, Marietta, dearest, you surely knew it was a legal necessity for me to see her—to"—

"To take her—alone—to your office—I saw you, Frank—to be with her constantly, to have time for—nobody else."

"Her aunt was waiting for her in my office that time. I had to be with her. It was a matter of business. You surely see that, Marietta? And surely you know it is you that I love?" His heart sang to think that he had been right, that she had been jealous, that she cared enough for him to be jealous. That was the wonder. Most of all his heart sang to know that in the moonlight she lifted her face to give him a kiss of forgiveness for the offense he had never committed. He reflected that he was not the first man probably to joyfully accept pardon for what he had not done; that she was not the first woman to whom a man had vainly explained a matter of business.

"Of course," she said suddenly, drawing back to look at him, "you know I was not jealous. She is not the sort of girl I could be jealous of—so very—unattractive." Worthing's laughter was silent, a thing of the inner man. Alice Lawton, his old friend, an accepted beauty, unattractive! But he was wise, and his disloyalty was very lowerlike.

"Marietta, did you suppose I could think you were jealous? And as for Alice, well, you know I can't see other women. I am blind."

A Hair's Breadth Escape.

Do you know that every time you have a cough or cold and let it run on thinking it will just cure itself you are inviting pneumonia, consumption or some other pulmonary trouble? Don't risk it. Put your lungs back in perfect health and stop that cough with Ballard's Horehound Syrup. Price 25c, 50c. and $1.00 per bottle. sold by L. S. Simmons.

The Name California.

The word California was first used in a work on Spanish chivalry published in 1510. This work was an alleged history of the adventures of "Amadis of Gaul and his son Esplandiam." It was of great length and divided into a great number of short stories, one of which was the manner in which "Califia, the queen of the island of California, a country inhabited only by women, who lived as amazons and had gold without end," saved Constantinople from an attack by the Persians. This story as well as others was widely read by the people of Spain and by many regarded as fact. Among the stanch believers were the members of the Cortes expedition, who upon landing upon the peninsula of Lower California imagined that they were on an island, which owing to its apparent riches they named after the fabled isle and Cortes himself called the new country "California."

The old, old story, told times without number, and repeated over and over again for the last 36 years, but it is always a welcome story to those in search of health—There is nothing in the world that cures coughs and colds as quickly as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Sold by all dealers.

The Word "Jag."

In many English country dialects the word "jag" is found. It originally meant a small load of hay, from which it came to mean a load of drink so big as to overcome one. "Jag" possesses an infinite number of meanings. The original meaning, "a load," has been extended to the journey with the load the saddlebags which held it and the act of carrying it, while in certain districts it signifies a blister, the head of a flower, calf leather and fatigue, in addition to coinciding with "jog" and figuring in ordinary English to denote rough or "jagged" edges.

Relieves the pain instantly, reduces swelling, is a perfect antiseptic and heals rapidly. Price 25c, 50c and $1.00. Sold by L. S. Simmons.

The Jury's Verdict.

An English coroner had directed the jury in a suicide case to find a verdict of felo de se. "Well, chaps," said the foreman of the jury when they had retired to consider the verdict, "it appears to me that this 'ere chap shot 'isself with a gun after shootin' an other chap with a gun, but Dr. Jones, the coroner, who we all know and highly respect, 'e says that this 'ere chap fell in the sea. Well, it ain't for the likes of us to go arguin' the point with the doctor, for 'e knows more about it than we do. So, I propose we find a verdict of found drowned"—and they did.

A Broken Back.

That pain in your back caused by lumbago, stiff muscles or a strain is an easy thing to get rid of. Ballard's Snow Liniment cures rhumatism, lumbago, sore and stiff muscles, strains, sprains, cuts, burns, bruises, scalds and all aches and pains. You need a bottle in your house. Sold by L. S. Simmons.

The best treasure among men is a frugal tongue.—Hesiod.

Consumption Statistics

prove that a neglected cold or cough put the lungs in so bad a condition that consumption germs find a fertile field for fastening on one. Stop the cough just as soon as it appears with Ballard's Horehound Syrup. Soothes the torn and inflamed tissues and makes you well again, Sold by L. S. Simmons.

The Only Way.

A person of little tact once remarked to the octogenarian Auber, "What a sad thing it is, this old business!"

"Yes," agreed the old musician, "it is sad; "but," he added, with witty philosophy, "up to the present time no surer way has been discovered to live a long time."

Croup is most prevalent during the dry cold weather of the early winter months. Parents of young children should be prepared for it. All that is needed is a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Many mothers are never without it in their homes and it never disappoints them. Sold by all dealers.

Every man flatters himself that he will finally whip his enemy and that he will give him a good one when he gets at him.

It is said charity begins at home. As a matter of fact, there is a good deal of complaint because charity does not begin at home.

When a man gets married he is apt to think everybody should give him a present, but how he hates to give wedding presents when his friends get married!—Atchison Globe.

When a cold becomes settled in the system, it will take several days' treatment to cure it, and the best remedy to use is Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It will cure quicker than any other, and also leaves the system in a natural and healthy condition. It is sold by all dealers.

Sawing Rails Is Not Musical.

Rails are cut with saws—not quietly; not at all. There is considerable racket underneath an elevated railroad in a narrow street, the subway isn't quite a lodge in some vast wilderness, but never until I watched a toothless saw cut through a cold steel rail by friction, melting its way—you can see the smeared ends afterward—did I experience a noise that my ear felt rather than heard, says Eugene Wood in Success Magazine. The toothless saw whirled with unimaginable speed, the sparks showered like an enormous pinwheel, and the unwilling steel emitted a shriek of agony that was like a forceful finger jammed into my ear and scratching on my eardrum with its nail. It was like a brass band of a hundred pieces, each piece blowing fortissimo, a note a half tone higher than its fellow. I don't care for such "close harmony."

Lame back comes on suddenly and is extremely painful. It is caused by rheumatism of the muscles. Quick relief is afforded by applying Chamberlain's Liniment. Sold by all dealers.
